

Is there any mood the shoe lace doesn't tie into? The fastening threads through the cutest, sexiest, preppiest styles (and so many more) with a personalised flourish that has sporty implications. From crisscrossing them up ankles and calves to leaving them low or loose, there's no wrong way to wear shoe laces either. The question isn't how high you'll try, it's whether you'll knot, tuck or bow the brand-new batch below.

PROENZA SCHOULER White Metal Ring Sandals

Proenza Schouler

Proenza Schouler uses tan laces to extend the artful embellishment of these striking sandals up the leg.

3.1 PHILLIP LIM Leather Ankle-Tie Drum Sandal

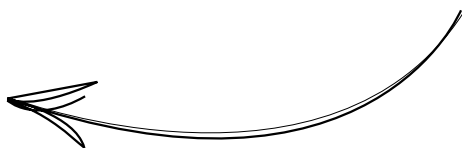

MALONE SOULIERS Multi Satin Lace-Up Savannah Sandal

3.1 PHILLIP LIM Leather Lace-Up Martini Heels

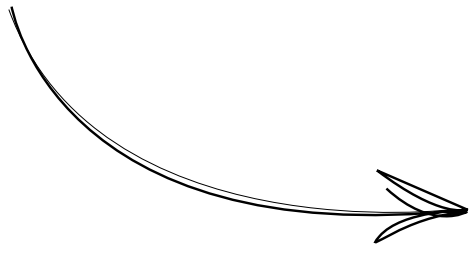

3.1. Phillip Lim

3.1 Phillip Lim's pairs are laced with the same urban utility as his ready-to-wear at various ankle-framing heights.

Bionda Castana

Bionda Castana evolve their signature detail with exquisite laser cut-outs to modernise the old school elegance.

BIONDA CASTANA Suede Cutaway Hazel Sandals

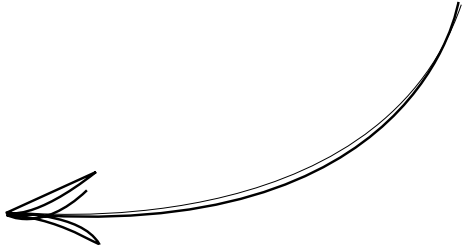

3.1 PHILLIP LIM Leather Lace-Up Sandals

TABITHA SIMMONS Leather Ghillie Willa Flats

Tabitha Simmons

Tabitha Simmons' glamorous flats allow ankle bound laces to crisscross playfully across the foot first.

BIONDA CASTANA Alexa Ankle-Tie Heels

TABITHA SIMMONS Cotton Dolly Stripe Plimsolls

MALONE SOULIERS Hazelnut Suede Lace-Up Montana Heels

Malone Souliers

Malone Souliers' statement makers are creatively secured using plain leather laces to match and clash colours.

